Amanda's business experience and attention to detail allow her to appreciate the unique needs of each client she serves. Amanda uses her strong legal research skills to understand a client's case and to provide thoughtful and practical advice to clients throughout the litigation process. Although Amanda has been successful at various levels of court, she also appreciates that sometimes settlement is the optimal route. With this approach in mind, Amanda is building a broad commercial and insurance defence practice that is practical, client-centered and results-driven.

Industry involvement

Notable matters

- Bertrand et al. v. Academic Medical Organization, 2023 ONSC 3209 (CanLII)
- Doria v. Warner Bros. Entertainment Canada Inc., 2023 ONCA 321 (CanLII)

Community roles

During her time at Osgoode Hall Law School, Amanda worked as a Caseworker in the Administrative Division of CLASP (Osgoode's legal clinic), where she assisted with drafting Criminal Injury Compensation Applications on behalf of clients. Amanda was also an executive member of Osgoode's Tax Law Association. Amanda's most satisfying experience at law school was serving as a mentor for first year students. After being mentored as a 1L student, Amanda understands the value of mentorship and was happy to pay it forward by assisting many new Osgoode students with the transition to law school.
