Biography

Eduardo Krupnik, Ph.D., counsels clients on patent and trademarks strategies, including the preparation and prosecution of patents and trademarks in Canada and the United States. He also helps clients with the preparation of company-wide IP strategies.

Eduardo has experience drafting and negotiating complex contractual arrangements that relate to the transfer, commercialization, or discovery of intellectual property, including assignments and licenses.

Prior to joining Miller Thomson, Eduardo worked in health sciences, where he was involved in the management of sponsor-, institution-, and investigator-initiated clinical trials, research collaboration agreements, consulting agreements, and other research-related contractual arrangements. Eduardo has also been involved in policy drafting, including policies regarding confidentiality, research contracts, and intellectual property.

Eduardo's comprehensive practice includes advising clients on matters related to:

Patents: preparation and prosecution of patent applications in the United States and Canada.

Trademarks: preparation and prosecution of trademark applications in Canada.

Licensing: licensing that relates to the transfer, commercialization, or discovery of intellectual property.
