Alissa Raphael practises health law, acting as General Program Counsel for Miller Thomson On Call (MTOC), an innovative program designed for health industry clients providing practical and timely legal, risk management, policy development, and educational services. MTOC provides legal and risk management advice for day-to-day and urgent issues. An after-hours hotline is available for urgent legal matters.

Alissa's experience in health law and policy enables her to clearly articulate practical advice that health industry clients require.

Alissa completed her articles at a major national law firm, where she gained experience in health general counsel and medical litigation matters. Prior to joining Miller Thomson, Alissa worked at the Ontario Hospital Association as Legislative Advisor, at the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care, Health Program Policy and Standards Branch as a Senior Policy Advisor, and mostly recently at Baycrest Centre for Geriatric Care as Legal Counsel and Enterprise Risk Management consultant.
