Brady Knight is an associate in Miller Thomson's Regina office practicing in the area of Commercial Litigation. Brady has experience in civil litigation, wills and estates, health and privacy law.

Brady attended law school at the University of Saskatchewan's College of Law, graduating in June 2018 with Distinction. Prior to entering law school, he obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Journalism from the University of Regina.

Throughout his summers while obtaining his undergraduate degree, Brady worked as a reporter, anchor and host for Golden West Radio in his hometown of Portage la Prairie, Manitoba and Rawlco Radio in Regina.

During law school, Brady was part of the moot team that won the 2017 Sopkina Cup as national criminal jury trial champions. He was also a member of the moot team that competed at the ABA Representation in Mediation competition in New York City – the first Canadian team to do so.

Brady also volunteered at CLASSIC, co-chaired the Small Urban and Rural Committee, was Senior Editor of the interdisciplinary section of the University of Saskatchewan Undergraduate Research Journal and served two terms as Vice President Finance of the University of Saskatchewan Debate Society.

In his spare time Brady enjoys running, photography and calling the play-by-play for local sports teams.
