Key services:

Blockchain Technology: The growing impact of blockchain technology on the global entertainment and media economy has led Wayne to do the deep dive into Distributed Ledger Technology ("DLT"). Wayne understands the many advantages DLT offers such as fast royalty distribution, accurate author and owner identification and a time stamp with the ability to detect improper copyright or modification of that content.

Wayne believes that blockchain technology systems are poised to revolutionize many aspects of social and business operations and he is actively assisting many DLT clients. The beginning point is to accurately draft the contract terms which are ultimately programmable. Wayne offers clients a strategic focus on the DLT "Chain of Title".

Entertainment and Sports Law: Wayne advises authors, actors, adventurers, athletes, celebrities, broadcast and radio talent on their contracts, media, publishing deals, endorsements, sponsorships, branding, merchandise, and social media presence. He is proudly the lawyer for the Canadian Country Music Association and many of their member musicians.

Intellectual Property: A registered trademark agent for 28 years, Wayne understands what is required for a "work" to be original, be it software, an invention, a masterpiece, music, or a potential patent. Wayne assists clients with identifying their intellectual property assets and then ensuring they are properly owned, registered, licensed, and commercialized.

Venture Capital: Wayne understands the intricacies of raising the money required to achieve a client's business or career plan. As an experienced corporate and IP lawyer, Wayne knows how to structure corporate articles and founder shares in order to develop the best possible term sheet and pitch deck and close the financing. Wayne frequently speaks on blockchain, publishing, copyright, trademarks, patents, venture capital and the importance of tracking and commercializing social media hits to industry groups and students. Wayne has proudly supported celebrities, entrepreneurs, Olympians, Hall of Famers, musicians, and authors in achieving their goals for over 30 years.

In today's business world, assisting clients with their legal work at a distance can bring up some unique challenges due to working across multiple time zones, information and asset gathering, and the drafting and approval process.
