Andrew is a tax lawyer building a career in corporate tax planning and tax dispute resolution for individuals and businesses of all sizes.

Andrew provides clients with representation in their disputes with the Canada Revenue Agency, ranging from the initial audit stages, through to objections and appeals, and up to representation in the Tax Court of Canada.

Andrew treats every client with the attention they deserve. Prior to law school, Andrew worked at a boutique real estate law firm in Toronto, where he worked with hundreds of clients to review their new build construction purchase agreements, and often saw each file through from signing to closing.
