Biographie

( Disponible en anglais seulement )

Mark is an associate in Miller Thomson's Litigation Group with a general practice in civil litigation. He comes from a mediation background and represents clients with a focus on results and resolution of disputes. He has appeared before the Court of King's Bench, Provincial Court, and various administrative tribunals, representing clients in both Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Mark provides pragmatic advice and counsel in a number of areas, including:

General Litigation: personal injury, wrongful dismissal, medical malpractice

Commercial Litigation: contract disputes, debt recovery, corporate disputes

Construction Litigation: builder's liens, contract interpretation and enforcement

Wills and Estates: drafting of wills and powers of attorney

Criminal Law: medical cannabis defence, Charter challenges

Mark has taught negotiation and dispute resolution at the University of Saskatchewan's College of Law since 2014. He has appeared as a speaker and/or moderator before the Canadian Bar Association, the Saskatchewan Trial Lawyer's Association, and the Saskatoon Criminal Defence Lawyer's Association.

Prior to joining Miller Thomson, Mark worked as a mediator for the Dispute Resolution Office for nine years primarily mediating civil disputes. In addition, he maintained a small solo general practice.
