Bryan Buttigieg stands out as a prominent figure in Canadian environmental law, leading Miller Thomson's Environmental Law Group. Deft in both litigation and advisory roles, Bryan aids in civil litigation cases and regulatory defence concerning environmental and occupational health and safety. His expertise spans brownfields development, site remediation, property financing, and environmental damage claims, with an emphasis on clean-up costs and market value losses. Bryan's mediation background and representation of corporations and individuals highlight his versatility and client-centred approach. Bryan's dedication to the field and his clients is unwavering, earning him respect and accolades within the legal community.

Bryan's commitment to knowledge sharing is evident in his many speaking engagements and publications. From discussing extreme weather events in construction projects to unraveling environmental law complexities, Bryan's contributions to legal education are extensive. His faculty experience underscores his dedication to shaping the next generation of legal professionals, demonstrating a deep-rooted passion for environmental law advocacy.

With memberships in revered associations like the Canadian Bar Association and recognition from The Best Lawyers in Canada, Chambers Canada, and Chambers Global, Bryan's commitment to excellence shines through. Recognized as a powerhouse in environmental law, his vast expertise is underscored by certifications such as the Environmental Law Specialist from the Law Society of Ontario.
