Erika joined Miller Thomson's Business Law Group after successfully completing her summer and articling terms with the firm. She specializes in financial services and banking law, providing tailored and effective support to meet her clients' unique needs. Dynamic and dedicated, Erika draws on a strong academic background and diverse experience to serve her clients with expertise.

During law school, Erika also served as a case manager at McGill's Legal Information Clinic, enhancing her skills in community-based legal support.

A graduate of the Université de Montréal in both civil and common law, Erika achieved academic distinction, making the Dean's Honour List. Before joining Miller Thomson, she gained valuable experience as a lecturer at the Université de Montréal and as a student at a boutique law firm in Montreal.
