Fadi Amine's practice focuses on civil and commercial litigation, specializing in class actions defense, shareholder disputes, insurance defense, consumer protection and competition law, franchising, insolvency, and special and extra-ordinary remedies, such as injunctions. He also regularly acts in the context of business or land disputes involving Indigenous rights and interests. Fadi acts for national and international clients defending multi-jurisdictional class actions involving product and pharmaceutical liability claims, and price-fixing, consumer protection and Competition Act violations. He appears before all the Quebec courts and the Supreme Court of Canada, as well as before specialized tribunals and private arbitration panels.

With a solid educational background, Fadi holds an LLB from Université de Montréal and a BA in Political Science from Concordia University. He is a respected author and speaker, contributing to legal publications and speaking on topics ranging from franchising to insurance to changes in Quebec civil procedure, demonstrating his commitment to legal excellence.

Recognized for his work, Fadi Amine has received accolades such as being a Leading Lawyer in the Repeatedly Recommended category for Corporate Commercial Litigation by the Canadian Legal Lexpert Directory, since 2019. He has also been recognized as a Litigation Star for Class Actions, Commercial Litigation and Insolvency, according to Benchmark Litigation Canada, since 2020 and has been recognized by Best Lawyers in the Corporate and Commercial Litigation category, since 2021. In addition, he was the Managing Partner of the Montreal office from 2022 to 2025.
