Karima Kanani is a distinguished corporate/commercial lawyer with deep and broad knowledge of the health industry. Recognized by a number of legal publications as a thought leader in the field, Karima provides health and social service organizations, associations and professionals with deep knowledge and experience in matters of health system restructuring, board governance, corporate integration, infrastructure development, broader public sector procurement, and other general commercial matters. Her extensive background in social sciences and healthcare uniquely positions her as a knowledgeable and empathetic advisor, providing strategic counsel tailored to her clients' industry-specific needs and challenges.

Karima is a dynamic and sought after speaker on emerging issues, health system transformation and good governance. With a deep-rooted commitment to the health and social service sector, Karima is also an esteemed author who has co-authored three editions of the book Essential Law for Social Work Practice in Canada, which has been widely adopted by academic institutions.

Karima's dedication to excellence has earned her wide recognition for her leadership and contributions to the legal profession and the community. Karima has been named as one of the "Best of the New Generation" by Precedent Magazine, a "Rising Star" and "Leading Canadian Corporate Lawyer to Watch" by Lexpert Magazine, one of Toronto's top lawyers in healthcare by Post City Magazine and a Lexology legal influencer. Karima has established herself as an indispensable ally and advocate for her clients in navigating legal intricacies within the health sector.
